Why is Photonics Important?
Lasers and other light beams are the “preferred carriers” of energy and information for many applications. The applications of photonics as an “enabling” technology are extremely broad. From an educational standpoint, this means that the infusion of one or two photonics courses into two-year postsecondary programs in related technologies can qualify graduates for a far wider variety of jobs and increase the global competitiveness of the American workforce.

What is Photonics?
Photonics involves cutting-edge uses of lasers, optics, fiber-optics and electro-optical devices in numerous and diverse fields of technology.

Photonics Industry Needs Trained Professionals
The industry is experiencing increasing growth in all sectors, and the demand for well-educated technicians has risen faster than supply to fill those positions.

Trained professionals in the photonics field are needed in numerous photonics-enabled fields, such as:
- Defense and National Security
- Advanced Manufacturing and Automation
- Analytical Equipment and Manufacturing
- Laser and Optical Equipment Manufacturing
- Research and Development
- Communications and Information Technology
- Healthcare

$62,230
